

Is your business seeking out a software development partner during COVID-19?

There is no doubt that these are challenging times across all industries, and with every new COVID-19 update, additional challenges emerge. We hope that you and your families are safe and that your business is able to continue to operate in these trying times.

Many companies that had not previously considered remote software development, are doing so now as they consider the effect of delaying progress in their technology roadmaps. TKLABS can provide your business with more than a remote developer; a relationship with a technology firm that can tackle your most challenging technology needs and also provide continuity during the COVID-19 crisis.

TKLABS has executed our business continuity measures and adjusted our daily operations to comply with state, local and federal government guidelines, to ensure the well-being of our clients, partners, employees, families and the community at large.

From day one of this crisis, TKLABS put in place a vigorous business continuity plan to remain open and fully available to our partners and customers, able to safely and securely continue to deliver high-quality software development services anywhere in the world.

TKLABS has the engineering resources, technical capabilities and a team of professionals to accommodate an ever evolving need for software engineering development and engineering projects.

With 20 years of servicing clients, we understand the current market and the demands it has puts on companies to keep their businesses producing results. We can fully take on your end-to-end engineering project or work alongside your team to produce results.

How can we help?

Please reach out to sales@tklabs.com, or 954-741-5585 to explore how TKLABS can best meet your needs.

www.tklabs.com